THERE IS SOMEBODY OUT THERE

You! The students of Southbridge High School — you must be out there somewhere! At times it seems that there isn't anybody out there doing anything. At times it seems that the spirit of Southbridge High has died. It is at times like these when you must realize that there is somebody out there!

There's somebody scoring goals for the Pioneers, somebody writing articles for the yearbook, somebody getting involved in the Student Council, somebody contributing something to Southbridge High.

Don't look too far — just take a minute and think. If you are out there — let someone else know about it and give something of yourself back to Southbridge High School for all that it has given to you.

So, next time you hear someone asking, "Is there anybody out there?" don't be embarrassed to stand up and say, "I am."

Heather King studies her new schedule on the first day of school.

THERE IS SOMEBODY OUT THERE

The Musket? Since when has our book been called The Musket? Since when has our book had any name at all? Actually, our book has always had a name, it was just never carried out, so unfortunately, the yearbooks at Southbridge High have been nameless.

This year's yearbook staff racked their brains trying to think of an appropriate name for the Southbridge High book. The search proved to be less than profitable — at least fifty choices of boring names that would be shelved away next year leaving the book without a name once again.

Then, we found it! One of the staff members came forward with a 1963 Southbridge High yearbook. It was called "The Musket." At first we thought it sounded pretty boring, but under further scrutinization, we realized that we were dealing with a legacy.

Twenty-five years ago, these words were etched in print. "We, the seniors of 1963, have selected "Musket" (as our name) and shall pass it on to all future senior classes at Southbridge High School. We believe that the Musket is a symbol of the leadership, the courage, and the forebearance of the Pioneers. We hope that by setting such high ideals for ourselves and for our fellow students we will be able to live them up together."

Hence, the name of "The Musket" has been reincarnated and shall once again represent the true spirit of Southbridge High.

What is everybody doing?

Working Hard/ Hardly Working?

"But mom, why can't I have a job? Everyone else does!" This plaintive cry is not as common as one might think among the students at Southbridge High School. In a random sampling, it was revealed that seventy percent of high school students have jobs, with the majority satisfied in their present positions.

Paying jobs provide students with an opportunity to purchase needed amenities, although many deposit half of their earnings in a savings account for college or personal use.

However, those students who do not have jobs are far from being inactive. A large amount of non-working students reported that they are far too busy with athletics, extracurricular activities, and the like to responsibly hold a job.

Contrary to other views, high school students and jobs, unlike the proverbial oil and water, do mix.

Festive Fun at Fall Festival

This September 11th through the 13th, the grounds of Notre Dame parish were stomped by the feet of approximately one-hundred fun-seeking SHS students. Why the big gathering? It was the weekend for the Fall Festival. Why so many people? Junior John Shaw quotes, "Nothing really happens in Southbridge and when something like this comes around, everyone makes it a point to go."

The Fall Festival, an annual event put on by the parish of Notre Dame, is referred to by most teens as the social event of the year. It is a place where teens come to meet their friends, chance their luck at a numbers game and stuff themselves with mouth-watering fried dough. This is the place where relationships begin and end for students at SHS.

Students may attend a dance on Friday night or try their luck at winning a giant stuffed animal or even an extra ten dollars at the Chug-a-Lug booth.

The Fall Festival also sets the stage for a variety of new experiences. Freshmen are welcomed into the high school scene with a touch of friendly initiation. Upperclassmen get together for a "night on the town." Former graduates return to reminisce with old high school buddies.

Within three days, all of the excitement is gone but the memories of the festival never seem to disappear.

Erin Montigny and Paul Girard clearly show that love "balloons" at the Fall Festival.

Fear Plagues the Blood Drive

On Tuesday, October 5, 1987 students SHS selflessly donated 31 units of blood. This bi-annual blood drive was sponsored by SHS Student Council, under the coordinators Jennifer Ferron and Mandi Bruce.

The underwelming turnout was plagued by fearful students. When asked what the big scare was, students surprisingly responded: the needle, the nurse, and AIDS. Though pamphlets concerning the disease were passed out to all students, some still remained skeptical. Fainting was also of great concern. One student claimed she wouldn't give blood in fear of fainting after she did so at last year's blood drive.

All in all the blood drive was a positive experience for all who took part, whether as donors or as supporters.

Summertime Fun

Laying in the sand trying to get a tan;
Hanging out on the street
in the summer heat;
We were sleeping in and diving in and some of us were driving in.
Beating the heat with ice
cream as a treat;
Talking on the phone or being alone;
We were riding the waves or watching the babes, but none of us were counting the days.
Volleyball spiking or mountain hiking;
Rollerskating or double dating;

Sailing in the sun or just having fun;
The summer of 1987 felt like heaven.

It's Only Pioneer Love?

— "Hey here she comes, how do I look?"
— "Fine, but do you even know her name?"
— "No she's new around here, but it won't take me long before I do. Should I make my move?"
— "Yeah go for it!"
— "Hi, how are you? Do you need any help?"
— "Um, yes I was wondering if you could show me where M114 is?"
— "Sure it's right this way."

Not all relationships start out this way, but there is some point of breaking the ice between each other. "You've just got to be yourself," advises Erica Tortis. "Danny and I were comfortable with each other because we had been good friends. Don't try to act different because how can you have a relationship without honesty?"

Why start a relationship without being honest? If you're interested, do something about it, don't sit back and wait. Sometimes while you are waiting to make your move, someone else beats you to it. Then afterwards if it doesn't work out, pick yourself up and start smiling at another girl!

"One of the benefits of having a boyfriend like Danny Cournoyer is he's always willing to walk you home from school," states Erica Tortis.

Hey! Are you still out there? We sure hope so, because the following pages are prepared to present adventure, chills and thrills, lots of laughs, and of course something totally different!

Of course, change was inevitable. After seventeen pages of standard yearbook fare, you must be getting tired. In order to keep your waning interest from wandering during the portrait section, we have decided to supplement your annual yearbook diet with a new addition to this year's Musket, a mini mag.

"Something Totally Different . . . " sounds exciting, doesn't it? It makes you want to turn the page, right? Well feel free, because it's all yours!

Spirit!!

Spirit! What is it? Is it being psyched up for a game? Is it coming up with a winning score? Is it being the loudest class at a rally? Is it defeating Bartlett at the Thanksgiving Day game? For the Pioneers, it is the role of the cheerleader to promote spirit. This takes a lot of time and dedication.

Aside from having practice after school and planning rallies, every week the cheerleaders have to deck the halls and lockers with decorations. Streamers of red, white, and metallic blue adorn the halls of SHS. Posters with phrases such as "Eat 'em Alive" and "Scalp the Indians" hang along the lockers. The question is, are these efforts really worth it? Are they a source of moral or just a tradition to be carried on by all cheerleaders? Are they appreciated, or just taken for granted?

Cheerleaders feel that their efforts are taken for granted, while players say they really do appreciate the time and effort put forth by the squad. Although this argument could be debated back and forth, most students would agree that it takes a certain type of person to dedicate all of the time necessary to cheerleading.

Practices start in June before the fall football season begins. The cheerleaders prepare themselves to compete at the USCA cheering camp during the summer. At camp they learn new material and cheering techniques to coordinate into their routines. Cheerleading is still not considered a sport by many. Regardless of how it is viewed, a cheerleader has to be just as dedicated as a football player, basketball player, or any other athlete. Perhaps it is harder, cheerleaders have to constantly keep a smile on their face.

Gosk Hits 1,000

On January 9, 1988 the SHS Varsity Basketball team was presented with a task — to beat the Auburn Dandies and clinch a lead in the Border Conference. With 31 seconds left in the second quarter, senior forward Christopher Gosk sunk a lay-up that sent the fans and team to their feet. Chris became the seventh player in Southbridge High history to enter the 1,000 point club.

Plagued by an opening game ankle injury which kept Chris off the court for three weeks, he made a remarkable comeback and once again was able to contribute to the Pioneer's cause. An outsider wouldn't have known that Gosk was approaching such a milestone in his playing career. He exhibited control and team cooperation just like it was any other game. Chris played a superb first half and eventually led the Pioneers to an 83-82 victory over the Auburn Dandies.

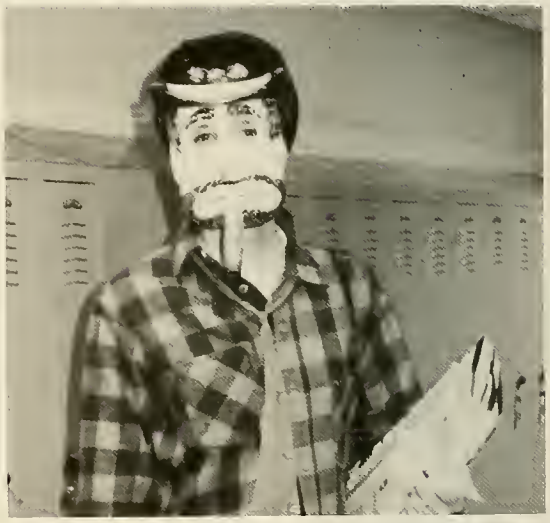
Fred's Fashion Faux-pas (for a Friday)

Fred feels that even the most tasteless of outfits can be improved with a lovely grin. Keep your pearly whites sparkling by rinsing with Chlorox bleach everytime you brush!

Fred's Fave Fashion Tip: Contouring make-up can improve facial structure if used sparingly. In this case, too much is too much!

Fred has found that feminine frills are back! Plenty of lace added to even the simplest of clothing can make you feel like queen for a day.



Fred's Fave Faux-pas: The disheveled look is tres passe! Pack away those trashy clothes and pamper yourself with luxurious fabrics.

Is your figure more than pleasingly plump? Whittle that waist away without sweaty exercises! Simply opt for dark-colored clothing.

Everyone knows that vertical stripes help to slenderize your figure, but Fred has deduced that their popularity stems from the fact that horizontal stripes are reminiscent of a chain gang!

Monday Maladies

Ah . . . a refreshing feeling envelopes your being as you rise from bed and cross to the window, relishing the spring scene which awaits its function as a stage for the day's activities.

"Oh my gosh," you shockingly realize, "it's Monday morning!" You quickly run through a list of possible ailments, mentally rejecting them all. "The 24 hour flu? No, I had that 72 hours ago on Friday . . . Temperature? Nah, it's too hard to rig the thermometer."

After pondering options for several minutes, you resort to the most definite, absolutely final source — a medical textbook courtesy of your sister in med school. Quickly flipping to the chapter entitled Diseases, you search endlessly for an illness not serious enough to warrant an excursion to your friendly family physician. "Darn!" you exclaim, slamming the cover shut and sinking into your bedspread.

"Hey!" your mind screams, calling to your attention the possibility of a simple stomachache. "Perfect! It fits all the requirements: I can stay out of school and the doctor's office."

You wait in bed until your parents fling open the door to see what could be delaying you. Prompted by moans from beneath your sheets, your mother rushes to your bedside, where you relate to her the painful details of your agonizing ordeal.

As your parents' brows furrow in synchronization, your mind wanders to thoughts of reading that fantastic novel you've had on your desk since Christmas, eating chocolates you've hidden in the fridge, sipping freshly brewed herbal tea . . .

You gaze expectantly at your parents. Your mother says, "I'm taking you to the doctor's. I'm afraid it might be appendicitis."

My performance was too convincing, you realize, as you watch your mother flush your hopes of freedom down the toilet bowl of life as she lifts the telephone receiver.

"Oh well," you think, "maybe I can buy off the doctor. I could use a hospital vacation — being waited on hand and foot, having all my wants and desires attended to . . . "

All questions for Queenie can be sent to: The Yearbook Staff; c/o Southbridge High School; 25 Cole Ave.; Southbridge, MA 01550.

Questions for Queenie

Dear Queenie: I have a severe dandruff problem. I've tried medicated shampoos, but none seem to work. What should I do?

— Feeling Flakey

Dear Flakey: There is only one thing left for you to do. Wear white as often as possible and tell your friends that basic black is out!

Dear Queenie: I am grotesquely obese. When I walk through the corridors, people ask me if I'll be starring in a new commercial with Bill Cosby soon! Please help me!

— Jiggling Jello

Dear Jello: Make new friends, preferably ones who are larger than you. Remember, if you want you to look thin, hang around with fat people!

Dear Queenie: I've been cursed with oily skin since elementary school. Now that I'm in high school, my complexion is greeted with prolonged stares. What can I do to save face?

— Bonnie Blackhead

Dear Bonnie: Try a mild astringent of ammonia and alcohol, and be sure to wash your skin regularly. Healthy skin is important for a healthy personality.

Dear Queenie: Lately my hair has been feeling dry and brittle. Whenever I try to brush or comb it, static electricity strikes. How can I restore my hair to its natural texture?

— Crunchy Coiffure

Dear Crunchy: Take a trip to the local market and pick up a jar of mayonnaise. Apply generously and let sit for one hour. Carefully rinse your hair with cold water, then shampoo. Your hair will be bouncy and vibrant, but don't be surprised if people mistake your tresses for a potato salad!

GRADUA

Surviving the Days At SHS

Welcome to Southbridge High School — a mixture of fantasy and reality, where new horrors greet you at every turn of the corridors — at least for the first week. You have entered a new dimension — a dimension of light and sound, of new faces and new terrors, of achievements and failures. It is up to you to decide which is which. The choice lies ahead.

November rolls around and along with it comes the Big Thanksgiving Day Football Game vs. Bartlett. Classes band together to coordinate their skit for the big rally. The night before the rally you gather up your friends and meet in the gym to paint posters and, in some cases, each other. You are introduced to the rally mascot, Miss Turkey.

Exams! Unbelievably hard, teachers in high school are so demanding. How can they expect you to remember things you learned way back in September? You cram and cram until the last exam is finally behind you. Half a year gone, half a year still ahead of you. This term you promise yourself to take notes so you won't have to study so hard for your finals.

Sophomore year has arrived. You have actually survived your first year at SHS. It seems like you have gone through a tremendous growth period over the past summer. No longer are you the low man on the totem pole. As wise fools you are not quite sure where you stand. Well, at least you know your way around school this year.

You are halfway there. Junior year is perhaps the most challenging and certainly it keeps you on your toes. October presents you with the PSATs. You sign yourself up in the guidance office and dread the time when the test date will arrive. A few months after the test has passed, you gather together with other test takers in the auditorium to hear the results.

Spring has arrived. Your first Spring Day at SHS. As a sophomore, most of you are too young to go to the prom. As a result, Spring Day is the major school activity for underclassmen. The day's events include numerous contests of physical agility and a scavenger hunt. A day in the sun is a welcome break from academia.

Ordering a class ring is not a necessity, but many students choose to order this reminder of their high school years during their sophomore year. Representatives from Josten's spend a few lunch periods in the cafeteria taking orders from students. Within the next few years this ring will symbolize many memories to female and male students alike.

TION GAME

Now that you are a member of the elite upperclass at SHS, you are able to attend the prom in the Spring. There is one catch. As a junior class, it is your responsibility to prepare for the prom and make all of the arrangements. The major part of the first semester is spent looking at places and listening to bands with hopes of putting on the best prom ever!

SATs! What an experience! Nothing else throughout your high school career can compare with the knots in your stomach on the morning of SATs. Three agonizing hours that hold the fate of your future. Nerves are on edge and for the first time you begin to realize that in two years time you will be out on your own. Soon the SATs will seem like a fond memory, as you approach their devious counterparts . . . Achievements.

You look on in disbelief as one friend after another completes the Driver's Education course and makes their way on to the road. Soon enough, you have your own license and within a few months you can't remember how you survived without it. Now, the only trick is finding a parking space within the vicinity of the school.

Seniors at last! You thought the day would never come. You are on the home stretch and according to previous seniors, this is your year to coast through school with an abundance of gut courses. True? Not by far. There is always something to be done, always somewhere to go. Teachers seem to have little sympathy for severe cases of senioritis.

Graduation!!!

As your high school career comes to an end, a feeling of nostalgia creeps over you. Most, of your friends are heading their separate ways next year. Everyone has a pretty good idea where they will be six months from Graduation Day. You have succeeded in getting through SHS.

Senior Activities become very important. For the first time you really feel like a class. You begin to appreciate the people you have taken for granted over the past three years. First there is the prom, a night when everyone dances and the sky is the limit. Next comes the Senior Banquet, a last hoorah for everyone to be together before Graduation Day.

Guidance sees you now more than ever. You are constantly being faced with deadline after deadline. Applications to schools and scholarships have to be sent out on time. College campuses are frequently visited by students in search of the school for them. School sanctioned interviews are scheduled and fees are submitted.

After Graduation Seniors Want The Best Of

EVERYTHING

Graduation is a special time to thank loyal advisors like Ms. Sylvia Tashjian and Mr. John Parillo.

Four years fly by like four weeks. It doesn't seem like high school has lasted long enough. Memories mesh together as graduation day approaches. Senior year is ultra-hectic. The fall brings final SATs, Achievements, college applications, scholarships, and dreams of what the future holds in store. Where does the time go? There never seems to be enough time to get everything done. Somehow, you manage.

There are so many decisions to be made. These decisions are life-altering and the options are limitless. College . . . Junior College . . . Work . . . Travel . . . It is up to you to decide what to do, what is right for you. Your future is up to you and it can sometimes be frightening to choose your own destiny. Many students are unsure of what they want to do, and for many it seems like time is ticking and deadlines have to be met. Is it possible to have it all?

Seniors believe they can have it all! Ambition and determination are at an all time high and no goal seems out of reach. Success seems inevitable if you are confident in yourself and you are willing to work hard to attain your goals. Can Seniors have the best of everything? . . . YES!

When considering the options for the future, students run through all of the possibilities. Perhaps Tony Osimo is considering (l to r) a career as a deli clerk, an oil tycoon, or even a priest?

Many students take the approach Kyriakos Konstantakis is exhibiting here, waiting for things to come to them.

Time of Our Lives

If we win the Thanksgiving Day game, it's called the Victory Dance. If we lose, it's called the semi-formal. This year's semi-formal was centered on the theme song "I've Had The Time of My Life." The song definitely set the mood for the evening. The festive atmosphere seemed to make students forget the unfortunate outcome of the day's events. All students that attended, whether with a date, or stag, certainly had the time of their lives.

STAMPEDE

The dinnerbell rings — the students run down the chute and into the grazing area. They get comfortable with the other "livestock" and wait in line for a trough full of feed. A few cattle rustlers try to force their way into the mainstream undetected to ensure that they will receive the first batch of feed. Watching over all of this are faculty wranglers, who are sure to lasso any stray calves making their way out of the feeding area in search of greener pastures.

Every member of the SHS herd knows that lunch is very rarely only a time to eat. Lunch is a time to socialize as well as a time to relax. In some cases, it is also a chance to get in a last minute glance at material for a test next period.

When feeding time is over, the troughs carrying the remains of that delectable fodder are brought to the receiving area. Then the cattle rumble back through the chute. Another lunch has come to an end at the S.H.S. corral.

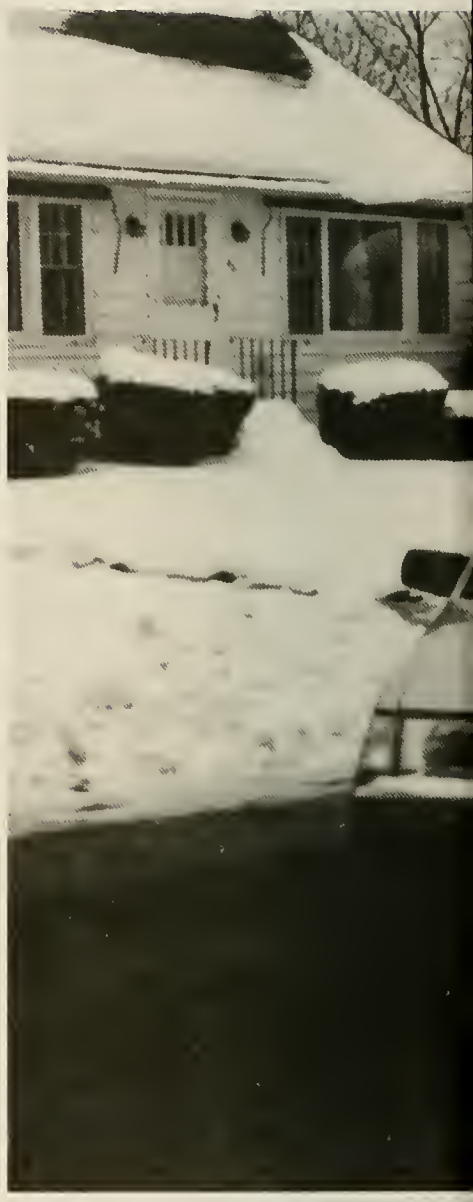
Finding Some Space

"Oh, no, it's 7:53! I can't believe it's this late! At least I have a couple of minutes before the late bell rings. I just hope that I can find a parking space." I am sure many of the S.H.S. students who own cars have been faced with this dilemma at one time or another. Finding a good parking place past 7:35 is virtually impossible, unless you enjoy parking a quarter of a mile away.

One would find that there are two different categories that the S.H.S. parkers fall into. First we have the "Early Birds" who have established permanent parking spots that none would dare to park in. Then, we have the "Just-in-the-Knick-of-Timers." This group consists of the students who roll out of their beds at 7:30 and roll into their cars at 7:40.

Unfortunately for most of us, we fall right in the middle. Sometimes we find a place right near the school and sometimes we're lucky if we get a place within a two mile radius.

A word of warning to the underclassmen: Before you think about buying a car you'd better think about buying a parking space.

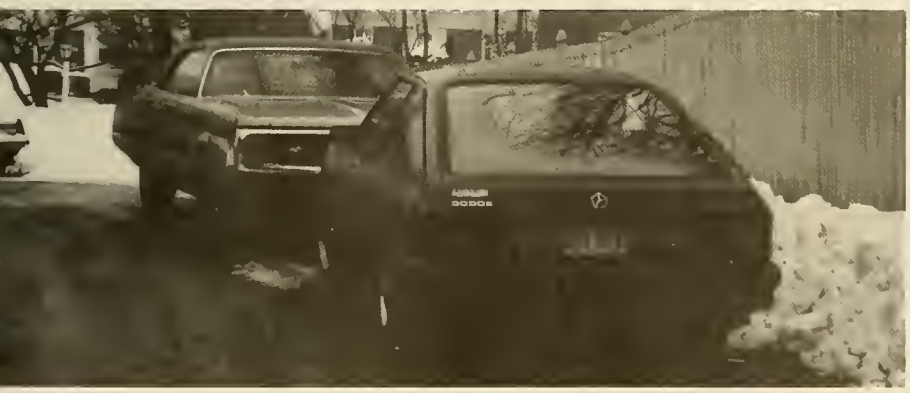


Above: Some of the early birds make their appearance.
Below: In order to make it to school on time and get a parking space, some S.H.S. students don't even bother to clean the snow off their cars.

Becky Howe and Christine Fischer take a minute to listen to one more song before braving another day of school.

Parallel parking is quite often a tight fit for those late in arrival.

Kyriakos Konstantakis slowly steers his Subaru away from the snow bank.



Some parkers prefer to "rub noses" to stave off the winter cold.

John Shaw supervises while Andrew Clarke attempts to park.

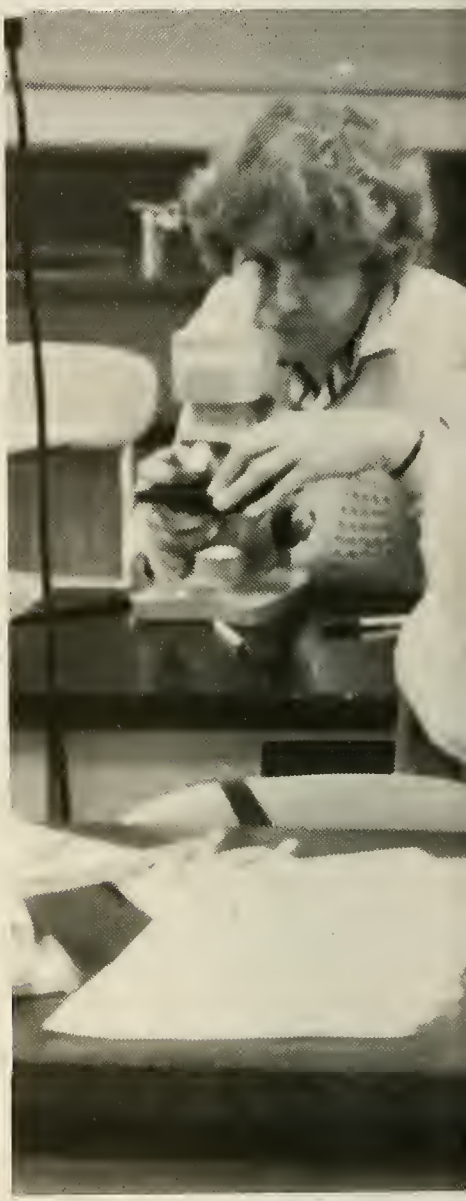
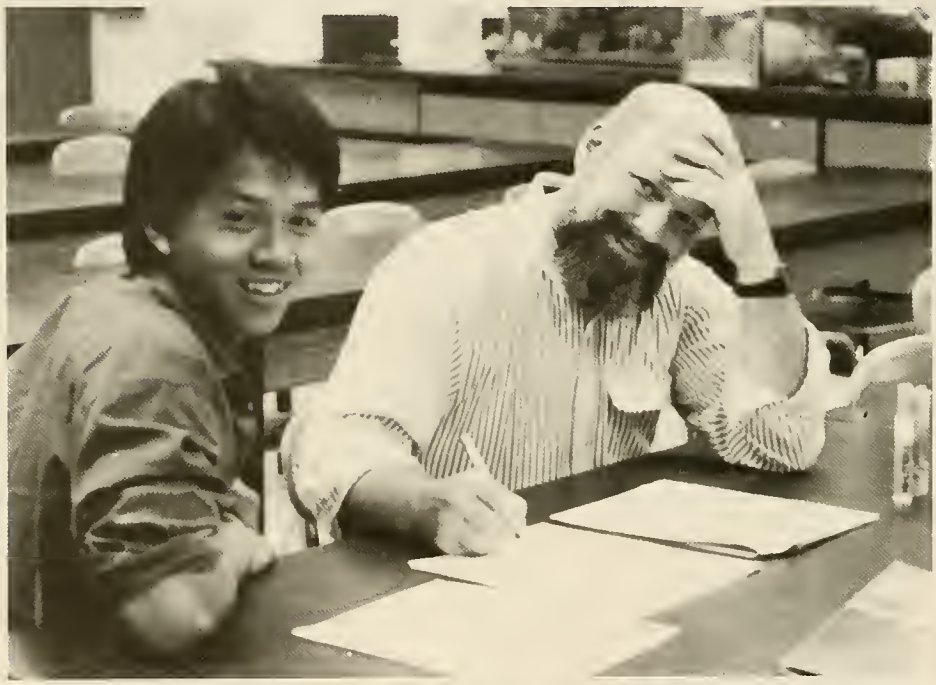
Is Your Homework Done?

— "Yeah, I did it, but it was kind of difficult."
— "How about you, did you get any last night?"
— "No, I didn't get any."
— "How'd you get so lucky?"

Everybody gets it, not everybody does it. Who likes to do homework, especially when you could be watching tv, talking on the phone, or out with your friends? No one likes to do it, but it is an aspect of high school life that every student must come to terms with. At times homework can seem monotonous and incredibly boring, and at other times it almost seems fun. Unfortunately, most of the time, homework is neither. It just sits there waiting to be done. No one looks forward to seeing their books at home after being with them all day in school.

Even those people who avoid homework, have had bouts with "that impossible algebra problem," "a killer biology lab," or cramming for a test the night before. We've all done it. It's not how you do it, when you do it, or why you do it, it's that you do it.





Above: "I'm thinking, I'm thinking." Mr. Thomas ponders how to explain carbon bonds to Davone Ketnouvong. Below: Brennan Cipro crams in the final minutes before a big test.

James Lach watches in horror as Tony Osimo prepares to drop his Physics homework.

"So, what do you think Debbie, should we fake the diagram?" Kerri Wentworth suggests to Deborah Raulli — a sly move to evade a simple drawing of the paramecium.

Erica Munson and Donna Faford enjoy a study period in the library.

What's the worst thing about homework?

"Carrying it home when I have to walk."

"Finding the time to sit down and do it."

"Bringing the wrong books home."

"Having to do it when you don't feel like it."

Aaron Poirier attends his first Student Council blood drive as president.

Junior Enters Presidency

Junior Aaron Poirier has done something never before accomplished at S.H.S. For the first time ever, the Southbridge High School Student Council is being presided by a junior. In the past, the president has always been a senior, but this year the council felt that it was time to change the tradition.

They held officer elections. The ballots were counted. Aaron Poirier prevailed as the victor for the office of president. Aaron's three years of experience surely helped him to seal the win.

As President, Aaron has already attended many conferences and is now doing his best to unite all students into the great pride of S.H.S.

He takes pride in his work and serves as an inspiration to all. He has certainly proven that nothing is impossible.

Congratulations Aaron!

The Heat is On

Deadlines are closing in. So much is happening so fast. Two years are behind you, and less than two are left. Junior year is the year in which you can make or break a successful high school career and your chances at the college of your choice. Decisions made now may very well have lasting effects.

By now the mailboxes of most students have already started filling up with information on the many options available for continuing one's education. Such things as class rank, grade point averages, and SAT scores are constant reminders that graduation is creeping closer and closer. Two years may seem like a long time, but as the year goes on you soon realize that this is just an illusion.

In between studying for SAT's and looking over prospective colleges it's often difficult to find time for schoolwork. However, grades in your junior year count for more than in any other. The heat is on, indeed. It's comforting though, knowing that all of your work will soon pay off.

Class Ring Fever

There's something going around sophomore year and it's very contagious. What is it? Well, it's no other than Class Ring Fever. It is diagnosed as the condition of having extreme anxiety to show others that one has officially entered the high school scene.

The fever begins in early October and continues throughout the school year. It is during this time many decisions must be made. What size should I get? What color stone do I want — the school color or my birthstone? What do I want as an emblem? Do I want a Josten's or an Artcarved?

Although the fever is very tiring, once the ring is ordered, one begins to regain strength. The waiting process of six to eight weeks allows all to recuperate.

With no further ado, the ring arrives. Miraculously, the fever is cured and all sophomores gather together to dazzle their gems.

Caught in the Middle

Pat yourself on the back. You've completed your first year of high school. You are now a sophomore. No longer a new experience, getting from class to class is not a problem. Surroundings are familiar.

Unlike freshman year when everything was a new experience, sophomore year is anticlimactic. You're not the youngest anymore, but you're still not experienced enough to be considered an upperclassman. You think you know what you're doing and where you're going, but things change as time goes on.

So much work to be done. Sophomores find that classes are harder and teachers less forgiving as you move up. More is expected from you by everyone. A multitude of labs, reports, papers, and tests all seem to be due at the same time. There is a possibility that you may even have to do some of your work at home. Such abstract ideas as SAT's and college choices will soon become very real, but for now you can just take things day by day. You are just a sophomore.

It's Finally Over

Initiation, perhaps the greatest fear of any freshman entering high school, has finally ended. For many generations, initiation has been practiced, but only as a way of having fun. Kissing a senior's ring or carrying a stack of trays at lunch were among the many duties a young freshman might be told to do.

Unfortunately, the practice of initiation became more violent over the past few years. It was so bad, state and school officials were forced to examine its practice. Any student caught provoking initiation could be fined as much as $500 or even be sentenced to a jail term.

With these new laws, freshmen are not as worried to enter high school as in the past. Instead, they look forward to spending perhaps the best four years of their lives.

The Freshman Experience

Freshman year can best be expressed with a single word: Big. Big buildings, Big people, and Big changes are all around you. Times are changing and so are you.

Lockers and classrooms line the walls of corridors which seem to stretch for miles. Dwarfed by the larger part of the student body, you rush about, not quite sure of where or why you're going.

A traumatic experience? Definitely, at least for the first few weeks. At times you feel as thought you're in a nightmare, not able to wake-up.

However, things do get better. As you progress through the year, it gets easier. You learn where you're going and are able to get there. What were once trying situations become the norm. Despite the occasional sneers and jeers from members of the upper-class, you realize that making the best of the next few years at S.H.S. won't be too difficult.

uarterback Harry Theodoss lays down the ground rules with two defensive opponents

Everybody is playing

They Met Their Goal

Over the roar of frenzied fans, I cry out questioningly, "What just happened?!"

My inquiry is met at first with a disbelieving silence, then chuckles and derisive snorts.

Because I have announced my incompetence in the realm of field hockey, I am shunned like the lepers of old. I now realize what I am — a sports pariah!

Desperately trying to follow the on-field action, my eyes swiftly dart back and forth between the two goals.

During the time required to blink, the players are upon me, following a speeding sperical object. I quickly sidestep it and stumble.

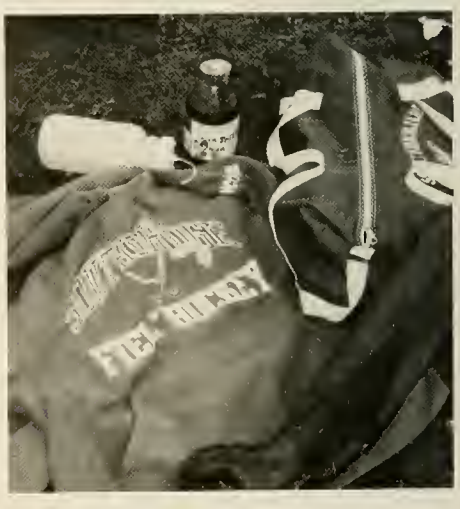
As I look at the field in a misty haze, I become aware of our team congratulating each other excitedly. After a few moments, I realize that I have missed the most important and inspiring moment of the match — the game winning goal!

Not only did I miss the final goal, I had no idea that this victory was the Pioneers' ticket to the Districts.

Districts Playoffs began with a 2-1 victory over Tantasqua. We were unstoppable! Then reality set in. At the next game, Westboro defeated the Pioneers 2-1 in an agonizing match, resulting in elimination during the second round of the Districts.

This loss notwithstanding, both teams had fantastic seasons with a Varsity record of 10-2-2, a J.V. record of 3-3-5, and a proud following of Pioneer fans.



Field hockey tools of the trade.

"The Other Football"

That America is truly a melting pot is clearly evident when faced with the Pioneers' roster.

At first glance not only your eyes but your vocal cords as well are confronted with unpronounceable multisyllabic words that seem to stretch on infinitely, but with careful practice they are rolling off your tongue as fluently as a native's.

Laotian representatives include Co-Captain Davone Ketnouvong and brothers Sacksith and Sysouk Bounphasaysol.

Delegates from both Western and Eastern Europe include Yugoslavian Stavre Vesovski and Italian Lorenzo Agati.

Also included among these international players is goalie Jose Sanchez.

Americans also add to this ethnic mix. Under the leadership of Co-Captain Andrew Clarke, the language barriers were broken down and team unity was at a high.

The camaraderie exhibited between this international lineup and their Pioneer teammates is truly worthy of recognition.

Perhaps the United Nations could take a cue from this pioneering cultural exchange?

Jerry Ouellette gets in some dribbling practice in the final minutes before a game.

Running Proud

Cross Country is much more than just running. It is hours of practice, an abundance of discipline, sore mucles and a multitude of preparatory work. All of this for a few minutes of glory. Running is giving your full effort for the joy that comes with winning, and being able to have pride in your performance, even when you lose.

A very special athlete is needed to run Cross Country. They must be dedicated and have good working habits. To excel in this sport all members must have determination.

The 1987-1988 team was bursting with energy and enthusiasm. Although they were small in number, with the help of Coach John Basque, they improved as a group as well as individuals. Sticking together through an extremely rough season gave them a spirit of camaraderie that will help them to be victorious in next year's conquests. Coaches and players alike look forward to a season filled with new faces, or maybe new feet?

Cheerleaders!

Pioneer cheerleaders — superficial, "air-headed?" Perhaps to the untrained eye of a lazy observer, but not to those who are familiar with the countless hours of practice dedicated to the flawless execution of split leaps, aerial cartwheels, and half-time formations.

The ideal cheerleader is hard to find — she must be expressive, well-groomed, and have above average gymnastic abilities. However, while keeping these traits in mind, a cheerleader must also fare well academically. This requires an intense devotion to her studies in the amount of time left after she has cheered at games, participated in rallies, and decorated the lockers of team members.

Above all, a cheerleader, being forever visible in the vigilant eye of the student body, must strive to set a good example for students to follow, promoting Pioneer pride.

Defeat After "15"

On November 7, 1987, pandemonium broke loose at McMahon Field as the Pioneers of Southbridge were defeated by the Tantasqua Warriors by a score of 14-13. Southbridge had been the victor of this big game for the past fifteen years, but in 1987, the tables turned, leaving the Pioneers in defeat.

As always, this game was pleasant for the parents of senior football players, cheerleaders, and band members. Continuing with tradition, students presented their mothers a corsage and greeted their fathers with a warm hand shake.

It was also on this day that greats such as Mr. Harry J. McMahon, Mr. Ted Farland, Mr. Don Marino, and center for the famous Dallas Cowboys, Mr. John Fitzgerald, were inducted into the newly created SHS Football Hall of Fame.

Fowl-Weather Football

Despite intermittent rain showers, students and newly returned alumni crowded the stands at McMahon Field for the traditional Thanksgiving game against old rival Bartlett High School. After an overtime game ending in a heartbreaking 6-0 loss, Southbridge spirits were lifted as senior Craig Boisvert was awarded the Harry J. McMahon Memorial Award for best defensive player.

Although this honor helped to raise the gloom over the field slightly, holiday spirits remained dampened throughout the weekend. Nevertheless, departing fans loyally reassured one another, "There's always next year."

Whether you're a teacher, parent, or student, once you enter the SHS gymnasium or stand along the cold sidelines at Harry J. McMahon Field, you're considered a Pioneer fan. Neither rain, nor sleet, nor a losing season will keep a Pioneer fan away. Fans, along with expressing support, espouse various SHS teams to victory. Regardless of the athletic event, all spectators from SHS possess an unyielding enthusiasm that far surpasses that of rival schools.

James May's family watches in disbelief as the Varsity Soccer team is defeated by Auburn in the final seconds of the game.

"Thanks, Coach!"

Who's the force behind the winning teams at SHS? It's the players who actually play the games, but who is it that teaches the players fundamentals, sportsmanship, and leadership? Though talent is something inborn, players can only reach their full potential under the leadership of a patient and knowledgeable coach. The coach's purpose is to instruct the students in all facets of the sport, perhaps that is why a good percentage of the coaching staff at SHS is made up of faculty members.

Along with returning coaches were some new faces. Girl's Basketball is under the new direction of Jane Cormier and Debbie Deacon, J.V. Cheerleading is being coached by former SHS graduate Lynn Girouard, and Freshman Basketball by former SHS graduate Todd Costa. Next year is sure to bring about even more new faces as two coaches opt not to return. Ms. T. Carmen Loconto has hung up her position as Tennis coach to pick up another racket. Mr. Walter Gosk, a long time coach of Varsity Soccer and Varsity Basketball, has decided to leave the realm of the gym and turn in his clipboard after many successful years of coaching.

Jane Cormier, new Varsity Basketball coach, knew she had a young and inexperienced team, but felt the key would be continued improvement from game to game. The Pioneerettes, though not victorious, made valiant attempts, and were perceived as a strong opponent by many rival teams.

The Pioneerettes received a setback well before the season started when junior Nicole Labarge injured her knee during the field hockey season. Nicole, who missed the last basketball season with a knee injury as well, was projected to be one of the teams strongest forces offensively and defensively.

With such a young squad, they are spending much of their practice time working on fundamentals. Offensively, the girls are sparked by the spunk of junior Heidi Martin and sophomore Jessica Rapo. Defensively, they needed work, but the determination of Robyn Lebel and Jodi Lebel inspired the girls to push themselves to work to their full potential.

It was a learning season for the Junior Varsity squad, under the coaching of Debbie Deacon. Though the Pioneers lacked a winning record, the girls proved to have a positive attitude which gained them respect from their opponents.

Southbridge vs. Bartlett. Students, faculty, and friends piled into the SHS gym to witness the rematch of these two rival teams. School spirit could be felt throughout the room. Posters were hung about the gym with such slogans as "Scalp the Indians!" and "Watch out Bartlett, you're on our turf now!" by members of the Varsity Cheerleading squad. The team was facing Bartlett for the second time this season. The last match had resulted in a heartbreaking loss for the Pioneers as the game was ripped from their hands at the final buzzer. The Pioneers were hungry for a victory.

An emotional charge sparked the players as they immediately dominated the game both offensively and defensively. The first half proved to be evenly matched as teams traded baskets. At half time Southbridge was ahead 37-32.

A late Bartlett rally didn't stop the Pioneers, and the end result was a 74-59 victory for Southbridge. Hugs and kisses were exchanged throughout the crowd. Cheerleaders and team members huddled together in the center of the court. This game was a victory for all students present. A victory for the team, and for a little girl who made all students come together instilled in all spectators a true feeling of pride in SHS.

Southbridge #1?

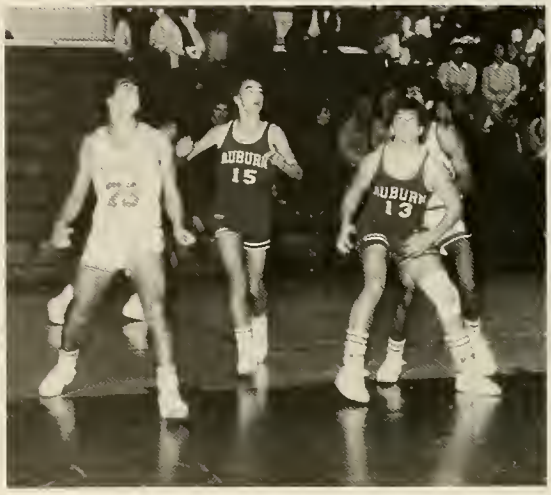
The Freshman team, ripened with another new bunch of future Varsity players, was in need of a new coach. Todd Costa, a former SHS graduate and Varsity Basketball player applied and was chosen as the new coach. Costa immediately started reviewing fundamental skills and agility drills. To his surprise, the freshmen seemed to have the game in control.



Led by Captain David DiDonato, the Pioneers started the season rolling with a victory over Woodstock. The Pioneers were victorious for three more games until a last minute foul out in overtime by Brian Gendreau broke their winning streak with an upset from Putnam. Overall the season was a learning experience for everyone involved.

The J.V. Basketball team, under the direction of Luis Pena, was led by sophomores Ken Amiott and Michael Bousquet. Kevin Berthiaume led the Pioneers offensively from the top of the key, managing the ball and calling the plays, in an attempt to find Mike Bousquet open from the corner or Eddie Rosario from underneath. Though the season was not a successful one, it provided the players with experience for future Varsity years.

Students in Action

What's going on? It seems that there is always something going on at Southbridge High School. Whether it be a fund raiser, a rally, or some other activity designed to promote school spirit, there is an organizational body that coordinates all of these programs that students often take for granted. That body is the Student Council. The main function of this group of elected students is to espouse school pride among all students. In addition to this role, members are also expected to take part in less exciting activities. It is the responsibility of Student Council to make morning announcements, monitor class elections, and deliver lunches to the students in ISS. No, the job is not all glamour, but all students involved find it enriching and rewarding. So, if you have some spare time some afternoon, why not sit in on a Student Council meeting. Take a chance and become a student in action yourself.

"BIG RED"

The "BIG RED" Pioneer Band has been accomplishing more now than ever before. Backed by the student body's respect and admiration, these talented musicians are always striving to improve their performance.

Being both a marching band and concert band requires members to devote valuable afterschool time to their musical studies, resulting in a Southbridge symphony that blends harmoniously at parades, school and athletic functions, and field competitions.

This pioneering dedication exhibited by band members has allowed them to obtain numerous awards acknowledging their professional and highly rated performance.

"Too Darn Hot!"

The stage sizzles with excitement as the Crimson Classics commence their stage performance. Sparks fly between members of the SHS Show Choir as they perform their introductory rendition of "Too Darn Hot!" for the audience. The annual Show Choir Christmas concert is held in the midst of the snow season, however, the stage radiates an undeniable heat. Singers belt out a variety of songs from show tunes to Christmas carols while performing intricately choreographed dance routines. Audience and performers alike revel in the excitement of the performance. All in all the evening is simply . . . too darn hot!

An Exchange Of . . .

Exchanges are common enough, just witness any major department store on December 26, as harried clerks dash through stockrooms fulfilling customers' orders for goods.

Well, exchanging inanimate objects is one thing, but people? It may sound reminiscent of an illegal black market, yet it occurs every year as members of foreign nations pack their bags and journey to Southbridge for a year of American life.

This school year was heralded by the arrival of three new students, Lorenzo Agati from Italy, Anatoli Lambriandou from Germany, and Bertrand DeLombart from Belgium, along with returning Yugoslavian Stavre Vesovski.

Although for the first few days hushed voices announced their presence in hallways and classrooms, they were soon silenced when familiarity set in. After welcoming these three foreigners and attempting to "Americanize" them, we realized that we had not only accomplished a physical exchange of bodies, but an emotional one as well with the sharing of ideas, cultures, and most importantly, friendships.

The Proud Few

Becoming a member of the National Honor Society is surely the high school version of the American Dream. Membership has undeniably become associated with academic success, hopefully insuring college-bound students with entrance into the university of their choice.

Now, as in past years, the most well-known requirement is the illustrious 3.5 grade point average that must be maintained throughout a high school career.

But has the Society merely become a glorified honor roll? One might be tempted to think so, but scholarship is not the only factor. In addition, aspiring juniors must show leadership, possess a well-developed character, and dedicate themselves to the community.

If one is able to fulfill these requirements, they are allowed to join the ranks of the privileged few, those who are now among the "nationally honored."

Junior Jubilee

After a frenzied night of hectic preparation, anxious anticipation rocked the gym as the annual Thanksgiving Rally began.

Under the leadership of advisers Mr. Brooke Mitchell and Mrs. Diane Allard, the junior class disproved the "Seniors-always-win." mindset by obtaining the first place overall class spirit trophy after three, well-deserved wins in the skit, poster, and yelling competitions.

An added attraction at this year's rally was the crowning of a new Miss Turkey, as senior Craig Boisvert abdicated his crown to freshman Darryl Howe after a four-year reign. Darryl, serve your subjects well!

Another surprising addition to this year's rally blew in like a cyclone — the faculty presented its own revised version of the classic children's story, The Wonderful Wizard of Oz.

A munchkin-like mentality remained during the awards presentation. Each of the junior class's first place wins was punctuated by high-pitched giggles and screams. Nevertheless, after class rivalries were set aside, school spirit remained in force, insuring a full-capacity crowd for the coming game against Bartlett High School on Thanksgiving Day.

Remembering a Friend

In Memory of Michelle Lavallee

Michelle, we miss you so much,
We just don't understand.
You gave yourself to everyone,
And met all of our demands.

Why was it you
Who was taken away?
Your memory will live on
In our hearts, everyday.

For everything we wanted to say
But never got the chance,
Will grow deeper in our hearts
And our feelings will enhance.

You touched every person;
Respect, you always earned.
You gave everything you had
And asked nothing in return.

You always had a smile
To brighten up the day.
May you be that happy now
With God, that's what we pray.

You left us unexpectedly.
No one was prepared.
We didn't get to say good-bye,
Or tell you that we cared.

We didn't say how great you were
Or how happy you made us all.
We didn't tell you we'd miss you
Or that you were such a doll.

Now, everything we hear or see,
Or say, or think, or do
Will remind us of our "Little Queeny"
Who everybody knew.

There are so many things if we had some time
We'd sit you down and tell you,
But the most important thing of all
Michelle . . . We love you!

Varsity Baseball's Matt Ferron gets his glove in position to catch an approaching ball.

Pioneer Prom fever is written all over Monique Dumas' face.

Is there anybody out there?

Always Up To Par

Last year's Border Conference champions made a repeat performance with this year's golf season. Led by senior captain James Robida, the Pioneers were able to procure high standing in District competition. It seems as though the future of Southbridge High golf is also promising. The 1988 season brought forth such new prospects as Aaron Berthiaume, Nick Giovanello, and Jonathon Osimo.

Jonathon Osimo totes his collection of clubs to the next hole.

Aaron Berthiaume is concentration personified as he prepares a putt.

Dario Tiberrii tees off at the beginning of a match.

A jubilant Tom Julian sinks a crucial putt while a dismayed opponent looks on.

Ronald Aucoin sprints towards first base.

Todd Berry's powerful swing connects perfectly with a hurling fastball.

Batter Up!

Led by Senior Tri-captains Todd Berry, Ed Galonek, and Harry Theodoss, and Coach Rick Silver, the Varsity Baseball team made a valiant attempt at a victorious season. Though their overall record was 5-11, they were not a team to be taken lightly. The J.V. Baseball team had a comparable season. With a record of 3-9 overall, they just could not seem to overcome key opponents. Once again, this season will be regarded as a building year, and the experience gained will hopefully benefit next year's team.

Another Building Year

This year's Pioneerettes unfortunately had a disappointing season. The Varsity team was faced with replacing a starting pitcher, catcher, short stop, and left fielder. It was the inexperience of the teams that led to their defeat. Though this year's season was not a success, the underclassmen on the Varsity and J.V. certainly gained valuable experience which will propel them on to many victorious future seasons.

Maryanne Beck prepares to snag a ball for an out.

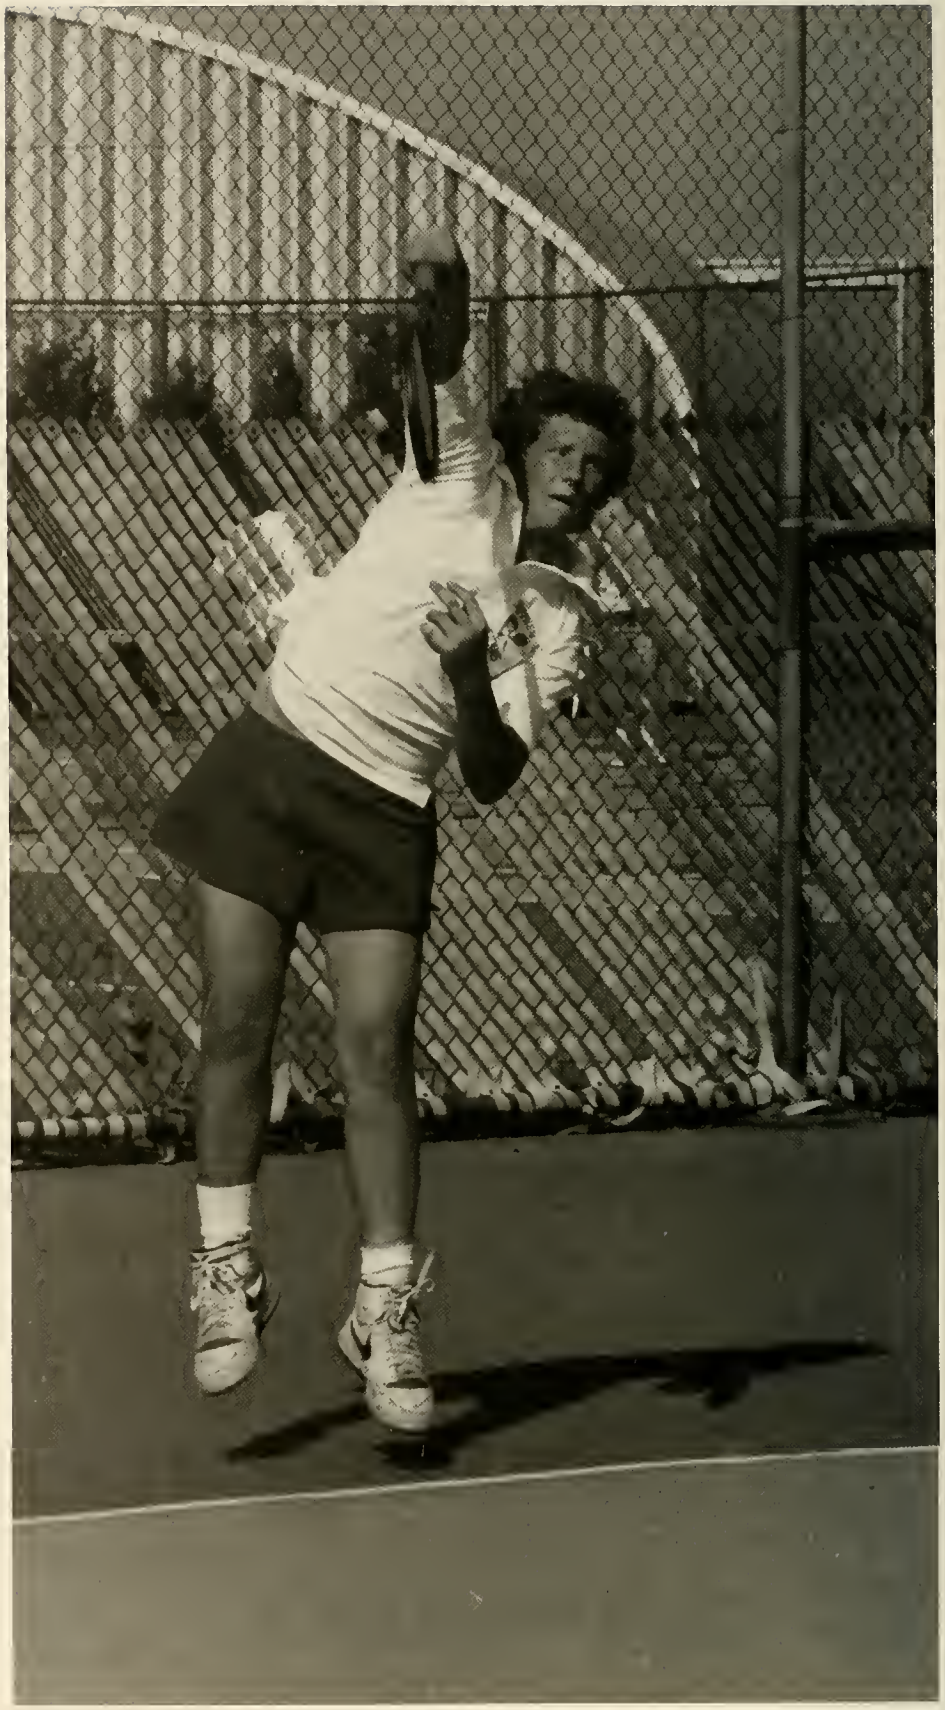
Tammi Murphy throws to home, determined to put another runner out.

Alison Bartlett breathes a sigh of relief when faced with a "just-made-it" catch.

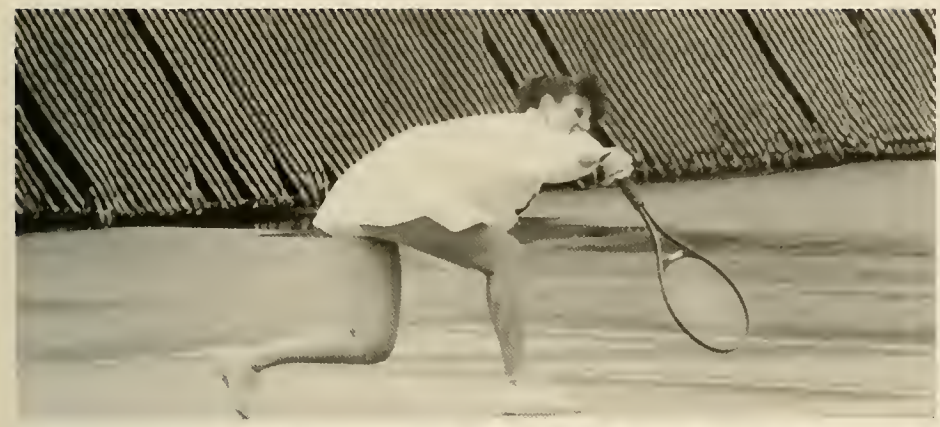
Chris Gosk artfully returns an adversary's serve.

Rushing to the aid of doubles' teammate Nicole Hamel, Gabrielle Poirier defends Pioneer territory.

Greg Poulin leaps above and beyond the call of duty to continue a volley.



Game . . . Set . . . Match



Boys' Tennis was under the leadership of coach Jim Kane and senior captain Chris Gosk. They were "batting .500" with a respectable record of 6- 6. Girls' Tennis was under the rookie leadership of Coach Jane Cormier. The team maintained a respectable overall record of 5-9. For the season, Chris Gosk and Jennifer Ferron were chosen as Border Conference All-Stars.

"Just You and I"

There was magic in the air. Luxury automobiles and limousines strode up to the edifice of Mechanics Hall on the evening of May 27, 1988. This was the evening of the Southbridge High School prom. Couples walked the lavish stairwells of the halls to the ballroom where the evening's festivities were to be held. Music played while couples ate and danced the night away. It certainly was a night "You and I" will never forget.

Ignoring stiff necks is easy to do once you get in the swing of things during a slow dance.

Above all, prom night is a time to have fun — a principle amply demonstrated by this attendee.

Chaperones pause from their constant vigil to be immortalized on film.

Dr. Kenneth L. Johnson, at his last Southbridge High Graduation before retirement, addresses the crowd.

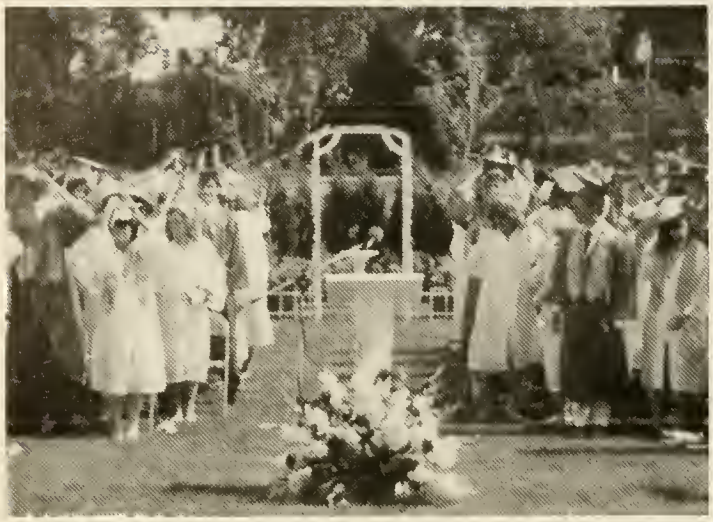
We Will All Be Stars

Graduation Day — the moment you have been waiting for and working for — has finally arrived. As you march across the field to your chair, a feeling of pride sweeps over you. You have done it! Scholarships are presented, speeches are made, and finally diplomas are awarded. With diploma in hand and smile on face, your mind drifts back and reminisces your high school years. So much left behind and so much that lies ahead. With hard work and determination in time we will all be stars.

Above: Kelly Congdon and Becky Howe applaud fellow seniors on Class Day. Below: Gary Peck leads the concert choir in their rendition of "Somewhere" from West Side Story.

Salutatorian Tony Osimo discusses the significance of the year 1988 and its effect on the senior class.

Graduates turn their tassels . . .



. . . throw their mortarboards skyward . . .

. . . and watch for eternal seconds as their caps are suspended in mid-air.
